CAMPAIGN PLAN / MALLORCA / €1,000 PILOT

Foil and Sail

New adventures await.

Sailing + e-foiling + a small crew. Adventure, taken care of.

01 One buyer, one moment

Initial audience: German-speaking, well-paid outdoor enthusiasts in Germany who enjoy water sports and being on a boat. Illustrative buyer: Markus, 47, Munich, planning his first holiday without his teenage children. He may travel solo or with his partner.
Internal targeting: core 35-60; never label customers by age in public copy.

02 The human insight

“I want to hand over the organising, not the adventure. But who will I be sharing the boat with?”
The barrier is more than equipment logistics: he needs confidence that the activity, comfort and people will suit him. This is a buyer hypothesis to test, not validated research.

03 The offer & reason to believe

A premium, organised Mallorca holiday: sleep aboard a sailing yacht, learn e-foiling with expert instructors, sail between locations and share meals with a small group. Travel to the boat excluded.
Indicative price: €4,000 per person in a single cabin, or €7,000 per cabin for two. Final price and package to be confirmed.
Credibility: founders’ sailing, e-foiling and charter background. Show genuine founder information; mood imagery is labelled. No invented reviews or experience guarantees.

04 The bold move: choose your crew

Make the fit conversation part of the value: ask how guests like to travel and what they want from the week. Founders discuss whether the trip suits them before any booking. Collect group preferences without promising specific crew compositions.

05 One message, one next step

Ad hook: “Your next adventure. Without organising every detail.” Show sailing, supported e-foiling and life aboard, not just a spectacular sport shot.
Journey: German ad → matching German Grona page → enquiry → personal founder follow-up.
CTA throughout: “Request trip details.” Name, email and short travel preferences; phone optional (proposed simplification). Show price before the form. Submission confirmation explains what happens next and offers a fit call.

06 Channels & €1,000 allocation

Proposed 14-day pilot, Germany first. One audience and two creative hooks keep the test focused. English is a supporting page, not a second paid market in this pilot.

Meta prospecting	€700
Google Search, narrow intent	€150
Reserve for the winning ad	€150
TOTAL	€1,000

Organic founder posts and water-sport club referrals support trust at €0 cash media cost; team time and existing tools assumed. Retargeting only if a usable, consented audience develops, using the reserve.

07 Conversion & learning

Primary conversion: successful enquiry submission, tracked in Grona with campaign source and language. Qualified = budget compatible, Mallorca interest and plausible travel timing.
Pilot targets, not forecasts: 20 enquiries (≤€50 each), including 8 qualified (≤€125 each). Track fit calls and later bookings separately. Compare hooks on qualified enquiries, not clicks alone.

Submission readiness: verify live Grona page, targeting, campaign and form event. Confirm dates, duration, capacity, cabin details, activity schedule and weather policy before publishing specifics. AI evidence: retain the team’s simulated buyer objections and show the resulting edits (price clarity, crew fit, daily experience). Simulation is not customer research; verify changes on the live page.
